

NEW SONG BIRDS

Com. Marsden Introduces Mocking Birds.

Six Turned Loose Yesterday.
Gift of C. F. Pfluger of Portland.

Hon. Joseph Marsden, Commissioner of Agriculture, returned to Honolulu by the Mariposa yesterday after an absence of three months which he divided among the cities of the Sound, in Portland, Oregon, and in California health resorts. Mr. Marsden left here in rather bad health but returns entirely improved and looking exceedingly well.

While in Portland, Mr. Marsden visited C. F. Pfluger, a former resident of the Hawaiian Islands and a gentleman greatly interested in ornithology. It was he who in 1892 introduced the Mocking bird into Oregon. Impressed with the favorableness of this climate for these birds, Mr. Pfluger presented to Mr. Marsden six birds which he requested to be set free in the grounds around Queen's hospital. With very careful attention on the voyage down the birds reached here safely. They were kept in a cage during the day in Mr. Marsden's office and charmed the employees in the Judiciary Building with their beautiful singing. In the afternoon, the cage was taken to the hospital and the birds given their freedom.

From the experience of Mr. Pfluger in Portland, where, he says, the birds began mating the year they were introduced there it seems no doubt that there will be a noticeable increase in the number of Mocking birds in Honolulu next Spring.

The food of the Mocking bird consists of all kinds of flying and creeping insects except the lady bird, Mr. Pfluger assured Mr. Marsden that something in the flavor of a good ripe lady bird is objectionable to the mocker and he will not disturb him. He is fond of worms, chafers, grubs, moths, butterflies, larvae, seed and berries, especially in the breeding season will they destroy large numbers of insect pests. The chief attraction of the Mocking bird is unquestionably its fine song.

While singing the male usually perches in the top of a tree, on a gable, on the top of a chimney or the steeple of a church. Before descending to a definite spot he usually bounces into the air and then alights on his perch. During the performance of his song he spreads his wings, expands his tail, and hops and flies around in an ecstasy of enthusiasm and joy. In the spring the Mocking bird is the personification of unrestrained mirth and activity. It always accompanies its song with lively movements. It turns its head in a very self-conscious manner to the right and left, jerks its tail occasionally, raises its wings over its back, bounds up quickly, and descends again to the same spot, all the time singing without interruption.

He is such a cherry, lively bird, that it would attract general attention even if it were not a beautiful songster. Its talent of imitating other birds and its own sonorous song, at once make it noticeable wherever it occurs. It knows better than any other birds how to acquire the love and good will of man. Its happy disposition, its extraordinary developed gift of mimicry, its wonderful song, and not the least its truthfulness, make them the most beloved and most cherished of all bird kind. The mellowness of its song, the varied modulations and gradations, the extent of its compass, the great brilliancy of execution are unrivalled. There is probably no bird in the world that possesses all the musical qualifications of this "King of song," who has derived all from Nature's self. All the notes gurgle forth wildly intermingled, without, however, any lack of graceful sweetness. Its song flows out like a rippling brook of tones and melodies, ever new, ever irresistible and peculiarly charming.

Its voice is metallic and soft, exhibiting such rapidity of change in the passages from one clause to another, from brilliant acuteness to liquid complaint, that one is really filled with wonder at such talent.

It especially loves to settle in gardens and orchards, and settles with preference in the neighborhood of man, and becomes so attached to man wherever it finds him a friend and protector. When protected the bird will build its nest often in the immediate neighborhood of a dwelling in a small tree or in climbing roses and dense shrubbery; it will nest even in the prickly pear so common at the Islands. The nest is often placed in the corners of fences or on a tree, in so exposed a spot as to be seen from a distance. The bird knows how to conceal the nest with great care when necessary, and to protect it from unwelcome intruders. The exterior of the nest is usually composed of twigs, plant stems, grasses, pieces of paper and rags, strings, and feathers; it is lined with finer grasses and rootlets. The eggs, four or five in number, are pale greenish blue, spotted with reddish brown. The male is too much taken up with singing to participate in the building of the nest or hatching of the eggs. He usually perches on top of a tree, or on a roof, etc., where he sings while he continually looks about in all directions. He will courageously defend the nest against any intruder, cats, dogs, and other animals, sometimes even man, are valiantly attacked as soon as they approach the nest.

Anyone who has ever visited the South Atlantic coast states will remember with pleasure the songs of these beautiful birds. To have them here, distributed throughout the city in the various squares will lend additional attractions to Honolulu. While away Mr. Marsden investigated quite thoroughly the carrier pigeon cotes around San Francisco. He sent down exact measurements of a cote and wrote for information as to the number of birds he should bring down but, for some reason he did not receive a reply. The Homing Pigeon Company, has $4,000 subscribed through Mr. Marsden's efforts and he does not intend to let the enterprise die out. A cote will be built at once and an order sent forward for birds. Before leaving San Francisco for the Islands, Mr. Marsden was shown a telegram in the office of Williams, Dimond & Co. giving that firm assurances of the safety of the Reciprocity Treaty.

NEW DEPARTURE.

W. W. Dimond Selling Fine Japanese Porcelain.

It is a well-known fact that it has been impossible for American storekeepers here to compete with the Japanese in the sale of their fine china and other wares. W. W. Dimond has recently made arrangements so that he can undersell the Japanese traders in these particular lines. By this he has procured sets and odd pieces decorated to his order, and in exclusive European designs. In addition to this, he has unique trays in lacquer, odd pieces and Japanese paper napkins. The prices on all of these goods are ridiculously low for the quality and decorations, which, by the way, so closely resemble genuine French goods as to defy detection, except by connoisseurs.

WADE AND WAVE.

The Kinau will be back from Maui and Hawaii ports on Monday morning. The Japanese man-of-war Hiyel arrived in San Francisco, from Seattle, June 22.

The S. C. Allen left San Francisco for this port on June 18th, and the S. N. Castle on June 19th.

The Noeau arrived in port yesterday morning with 4,160 bags of H. S. Co. sugar for the ship Aryan.

The W. G. Hall took 65 Chinese laborers to Koloa, and the James Mabee 54 to Kapaia yesterday afternoon.

Japanese boats are becoming more and more numerous in the harbor every day. Some natives have taken to using them.

Japan has ordered a battleship of 11,000 tons to be built on the Clyde, on the same style as the 15,000-ton British battleship Jupiter, of 17 knots.

The bark Hesper, coal laden from Newcastle, arrived off port early last evening. The pilot boat went out, but the captain decided to wait until this morning before coming into port.

The American barkentine Archer, Calhoun master, sailed at 3 p. m. yesterday with a full load of sugar for San Francisco.

The City of Peking brought 232 Chinese for these Islands. Not a bit of sickness was found among them, and they were classed by the Port Physician a very clean lot.

The Hesper, which arrived yesterday morning, was 10 days coming from Hawaii to this Island. Had the good winds kept up she would have come into port from Westport, N. Z., in about 32 days, which would have broken the record.

The American bark Alden Besse, Potter master, arrived in port yesterday forenoon, 18 days from San Francisco, with a cargo of 1,490 tons of general merchandise, consigned to Wm. G. Irwin & Co. Fine weather was experienced throughout the voyage. On June 5th passed the steamer Moana. The Alden Besse was within 200 miles of the Islands for the last six days.

The bark Hesper, F. O. Sedergren master, arrived in port at about 7:30 o'clock yesterday morning, after a trip of 49 days from Westport, N. Z., with a cargo of 1,158 tons of coal for the I. I. S. N. Co. and to order. Fine weather throughout the voyage was met with by the Hesper. On account of the flood, she was laid up in Butler River for 10 days. Captain Sedergren is accompanied by his wife.

The O. S. S. Australia, Houdlette commander, sailed out on time for San Francisco yesterday afternoon. There was a larger number of passengers taken out by the favorite liner, and the Oceanic wharf, as well as the decks of the Australia, were packed up to the time of her leaving. The band was on the wharf an hour before time, and played many popular airs. Just as the Australia was hauling away from the wharf the Kamehameha School girls sang a farewell song to Miss Pope, their principal. The Kamehameha School Band played alternately with the Government Band.
